

INDEX

1. Objectives and methodology of analysis	9
2. Wine business and global competition	15
2.1 Global wine trade	15
2.2 Global wine production	17
2.3 Global wine consumption	19
2.4 The future evolution of global wine consumption	20
2.5 New World and Old World: capital concentration	22
2.6 Outline of the Italian wine industry	24
3. The wine cluster: distinctive traits and critical actors in this peculiar local system	29
3.1 The wine cluster in the economic and managerial literature: towards a first definition of this territorial unit of analysis according to an entrepreneurial approach	29
3.2 Critical characters and actors of a wine cluster	37
3.2.1 Major actors and networks of relations	37
3.2.2 A first synthesis of similarities and differences in comparison to the analysis perspective of industrial districts	46
3.3 The wine clusters in Italy and in foreign countries: some empirical evidences	50
3.3.1 The California wine cluster	50
3.3.2 An overview of the Australian wine organizations	52
3.3.3 The Victorian wine cluster	54
3.3.4 The Italian wine clusters	55
3.3.5 The oeno-tourist clusters	56
3.3.6 Wine clusters and Italian wineries	58
4. The role of leading firms in the development of wine clusters	61
4.1 The relevant variables to identify a leading firm	62
4.2 The different profiles of leading firms in the wine business: first attempt of simplification	65

4.3 Some peculiarities of leader firms in the wine industry: an evolutionary analysis	71
5. Wine, territory, and tourism: an analytical framework for a marketing-based view	81
5.1 Brand value in the wine business: a micro/macro-marketing model of analysis	81
5.1.1 An interpretative model and purpose of the analysis	82
5.1.2 Methodology	85
5.2 Moving from territory to firm analysis: types of relationships and relevant value flows for the wine marketing	86
5.2.1 The different qualities of the relationship territory-enterprise	86
5.3 The value flows for marketing	98
5.3.1 The non-simultaneity of flows	98
5.3.2 The peculiarity of tourism flows of value	103
5.3.3 The wine tourism as a niche offer	105
5.4 Wine brand strategies among business, territory and tourism	108
6. Wine clusters and leading firms in Tuscany	113
6.1 Wine business in Tuscany: some evidence on the entrepreneurial models and the local systems	113
6.1.1 Entrepreneurial models in the Tuscan wine business	113
6.1.2 Overview of the Tuscan wine areas	117
6.1.3 The Chianti Classico system	118
6.1.4 The Montalcino system	124
6.2 Some cases of leading wine firms	133
6.2.1 Marchesi Antinori	133
6.2.2 Castello di Ama	143
6.2.3 Ruffino	158
6.2.4 Col d'Orcia	169
6.2.5 Castello Banfi	177
7. Wine clusters and leading firms: an international outlook	193
7.1 Managing the wine business at a large scale: two case studies in California	193
7.1.1 The role of California within the US wine industry	193
7.1.2 California wine regions and appellations	195
7.1.3 Competitive industry analysis	198
7.1.4 Robert Mondavi	200
7.1.5 E. & J. Gallo	204
7.2 The wine cluster of Mendoza	212
7.2.1 Some general features of Argentina's vitiviniculture	212
7.2.2 The chain of value	215
7.2.3 The restructuring of the sector in the 1990s	217

7.2.4 Changes in the ownership structure	224
7.3 The role of the wine “Syndacat” in promoting wine clusters: the Bordeaux experience	230
7.3.1 The actors and the organization of the Wine cluster of Bordeaux	230
7.3.2 The role of professional “syndacat” in promoting the Bordeaux region	232
7.3.3 Recent trends in the Bordeaux wine business	233
7.3.4 The strategies followed to face the new competitive scenario	234
7.4 The Baden wine cluster and a case of leading firm in Germany	235
7.4.1 The German Wine	235
7.4.2 Brief history and geographical and climatic conditions of wine making in Germany	236
7.4.3 Changes in recent years	238
7.4.4 German wines make a global impact in 2003	239
7.4.5 The Baden Wine Cluster. Brain and Wine	242
8. Wine clusters and leading firms between tradition and innovation: a first effort to understand the evolution of the Tuscan wine through an international comparative analysis	257
References	273